

About the Contributors

JAVIER CALLE-MARTÍN is Senior Lecturer in the Department of English at the University of Málaga (Spain). His research interests are Historical Linguistics and Manuscripts Studies, early English documents in particular. Dr Calle-Martín is the leading researcher of a project for the electronic edition and compilation of an annotated corpus of late Middle English Fachliteratur. He has published in a number of international journals such as Neuphilologische Mitteilungen, Folia Linguistica Historica, the Review of English Studies and the Australian Journal of Linguistics, among others. Recently, he has also developed an interest in the morpho-syntactic features of World Englishes, Asian English in particular.

LAURA ESTEBAN-SEGURA is Associate Professor at the Department of English Philology of the University of Murcia (Spain), where she teaches courses on the history of the English language (both at undergraduate and postgraduate level). Her main research interests are in English historical linguistics, textual editing, manuscript studies and translation. She has published in specialised journals such as Linguistica e Filologia, SELIM, English Studies and Neuphilologische Mitteilungen, and has contributed chapters to volumes published by Wiley-Blackwell and Brepols, among others.

DOLORES FERNÁNDEZ MARTÍNEZ is a lecturer in English Linguistics and English as a Foreign Language at the University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, Spain, where she has been a faculty member since 2005. Her research interests lie in the area of discourse analysis, critical discourse analysis and systemic functional grammar. She has applied these theoretical and methodological frameworks to the study of some Old English texts and more recently, to the teaching of English as a foreign language. For the last few years, she has been working on several research projects on eighteenth-century English grammars.

156 About the Contributors

JENNIFER HERRIMAN is professor emerita at Gothenburg University, Sweden. Her research is within the theory of Systemic Functional Linguistics. Her main areas of investigation are Swedish advanced learners' writing in English and contrastive studies of English and Swedish texts and their translations.

ENCARNACIÓN HIDALGO TENORIO is a senior lecturer in English linguistics at the University of Granada, Spain, where she has been teaching several undergraduate and master courses since 2001. Her main research area is Critical Discourse Analysis, where she focuses on notions such as representation and power enactment as manifested mainly in public discourse. She has also published on language and (gender) identity, and has paid particular attention to the analysis of the way this is construed through discourse.

TERESA MARQUÉS-AGUADO is Lecturer at the University of Murcia since 2009. Her research interests include Historical Linguistics, Codicology, Palaeography and Manuscript Studies. She is involved in several research projects aimed to the electronic edition of late Middle English Fachprosa and the subsequent compilation of an annotated lemmatised corpus. She has published in specialised journals like SELIM, English Studies, International Journal of English Studies or Variants, among others, as well as in volumes published by Peter Lang, Wiley-Blackwell or Brepols.

JESÚS ROMERO-BARRANCO holds a BA in English Language and Literature from the University of Málaga (Spain). He has recently obtained an MA in English Language and Literature from the University of Málaga, where he collaborates as an assistant in a research project pursuing the electronic edition of hitherto unedited early modern English Fachliteratur. Recently, he has also developed an interest in the development of the emerging varieties of English around the world, Asian English in particular.

PIOTR TWARDZISZ is Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Applied Linguistics at the University of Warsaw, Poland. His research interests focus on specialist languages, figurative language, word-formation, lexicology and terminology, as well as politics and international affairs. He is author of Zero Derivation in English: A Cognitive Grammar Approach (1997), Patterns of English Word-Formation (2010), The Language of Interstate Relations. In Search of Personification (2013, Palgrave Macmillan), and numerous articles.